Enrollment confirmation requirements

Dear:

Wayne State University instructors must provide the Office of the Registrar with confirmation of each student's class participation before the end of the second week of classes. The following is a description of the class participation confirmation effect on financial aid disbursements.

Disbursement before classes begin

Before classes begin, institutions may assume that the registered students will attend classes. Financial aid can be disbursed without confirmation of class participation. Winter 2017 financial aid disbursements began on January 4 to registered students whose financial aid requirements were complete. Class participation confirmation is not required for aid to be disbursed prior to the start of classes. However, class participation confirmation is required to keep disbursed financial aid, and participation will be monitored.

Disbursement after classes begin

After classes begin, students must receive certification of class participation from each of their instructors before their federal financial aid can be disbursed. Access reg.wayne.edu/gotoclass.php for detailed information about the participation confirmation process.

If an instructor in one class or more does not certify the class participation of a student who has been awarded financial aid, a hold will be placed on the disbursement of the student's federal aid until his/her class participation is confirmed.
